The goal: The reflecting practitioner with closeness and distance -
- to the client
- to the own role in the organisation

How?

An ongoing META-reflection...

- Methods and tools to be understood through own use and reflection
- Reflection upon the learning procedure (PDP)
- Knowledge, theories – to be understood connected to the students own context and background

Areas of knowledge

The society – organisations, rulings, laws, the systems around the client

Schoolsystem, labourmarket - within the area where the guidance counsellor "do the talking"

The professional dialogue ,
communication, pedagogy
(individuals and groups)

Understanding of the facts that creates the persons "settings" and area of action (sociology)

The human development
(psychology)

Career development knowledge – connexions, different ways to understand career

Knowledge must be translated into...

Ability – Development of communication skills and cooperation

- Presentationtraining in different forms (examination)
- Pedagogical skills (training with individuals and groups)
- Groupwork/problemsolving/cooperation
(and: learning from others perspective)
- Challenges to develop self confident and courage
- Development of creativity – frames, not instructions on a detail level

Developing of a critical approach

- In given tasks – not just describe/reproduce
- Do you buy this?
- Are there more ways to look upon it?
- How can you use the knowledge (or theory)?
- In another context: consequences for the individual, the society etc...?
- In the coming profession:
  - challenge client's standards and norm settings
  - braveness, courage (to be kind is not enough – "tough love")

The use of academic writing

- Developing of the written ability
- Argumentation skills
- To be critical about knowledge, information, source management
- Developing of the search for new knowledge
- Identify patterns, make conclusions – things to be done in the professional conversation
- Cooperation – towards deadlines
