Inclusiveness in a smart world

Some people are better at looking at things from a wider perspective than others - they can think outside the box. Individuals, companies and organisations strive for continuity to provide basic safety. Innovation is crucial to survive in the modern world. Sometimes we need to be quick and exploit new opportunities when we see them. In such cases, continuity can stand in the way of agility. Modern technology and serendipity enable us to move forward without losing stability.

On an individual level, we might experience anxiety or even get into a panic when interacting in a modern and lean world. This is precisely why it is crucial to invest in an inclusive organisation and society.

How shall we tackle the dilemma between Lean and serendipity in the future?
